Turkey taco meal prep bowls are not only one of the most popular meal prep recipes on Sweet Peas & Saffron, but one of my personal faves as well!

Inspired by a burrito bowl, but with turkey taco meat, brown rice, corn and a quick pico de gallo for a pretty and delicious meal.

Think of this as a really loose recipe that you can adapt with your favorite toppings.

Reasons you'll ♥ these turkey taco meal prep bowls

- so tasty!
- they are simple to prep and make 4 lunches
- the recipe is easily adaptable

Which ingredients do we need?

These turkey taco meal prep bowls are highly adaptable and are loosely based on a burrito bowl. Here are the components:

- turkey taco meat– swap the turkey for ground beef, crumbled tofu, or your favorite protein. I used my homemade taco seasoning.
- brown rice– cooked in my rice cooker. See How to Cook Brown Rice. Swap with long grain white rice, quinoa or cauliflower rice.
- corn– from a can, frozen or fresh corn work as well
- pico de gallo– normally I don't love tomatoes in my meal prep but since it's meant to be somewhat 'juicy', it works well in this one!
- cheese– optional but recommended. I used shredded mozzarella!

Other toppings that would be great in this recipe?

- roasted sweet potato
- avocado slices (add just before serving)
- salsa
- black beans
- bell peppers

Are these turkey taco meal prep bowls served hot or cold? They are meant to be served cold, however you can certainly heat them up! If you do plan to heat, I might store the pico de gallo separate and add it in after heating through.

Can I use chicken? Yes, you certainly can. I would cut the chicken into small pieces, sautee until cooked through, then add the taco seasoning + water to make the sauce.

Can I make this vegan? Yes, you can! I would follow directions for the tofu taco 'meat' in this Tofu Tacos post.

What about low carb? I would swap the rice for cauliflower rice (here's How to Make Cauliflower Rice!), swap the corn for bell peppers or your favorite lower carb veggie, and maybe add in some healthy fats like avocado to make it more filling.

These turkey taco meal prep bowls with turkey taco meat, corn, pico de gallo and brown rice are simple, but filling. Make them ahead for four delicious lunches.

Prep Time	Cook Time	Total Time
20 mins	50 mins	1 hr 10 mins

IngredientsRice

- ☐ 3/4 cup brown rice (uncooked; may be swapped for quinoa or long grain white rice)
- ☐ 1/8 tsp salt
- ☐ 1 lime (zested)

Turkey

- ☐ 3/4 lb lean ground turkey (beef or chicken may be swapped)
- ☐ 2 tablespoons homemade taco seasoning
- ☐ 2/3 cup water

Salsa

- ☐ 1 pint cherry tomatoes (halved)
- ☐ 1 jalapeno (finely chopped)
- ☐ 1/4 cup red onion (finely chopped)

x Get Notifications

- ☐ 1/2 lime (juiced)
- ☐ 1/8 teaspoon salt

Other:

- ☐ 12 oz can corn kernels (341 mL; drained)
- ☐ 1/2 cup mozzarella (shredded)

Instructions

1. Cook brown rice according to package directions, adding the lime zest and salt to the cooking water. Allow to cool slightly before portioning out.
2. Add turkey to a medium pan and cook over medium heat, breaking it up with a spatula until no longer pink (approximately 10 minutes).
3. Sprinkle the taco seasoning over the cooked meat, then add the water. Stir and simmer for a couple of minutes, until sauce has thickened.
4. Remove from heat and allow to cool slightly before portioning out.
5. Combine all salsa ingredients and toss together.
6. To assemble lunch bowls, divide ingredients evenly between four 2-cup capacity meal prep containers.

Storage

1. Store in the fridge for up to 4 days.
2. You may serve cold or warm up in the microwave before enjoying (see * notes)

x Get Notifications

Notes

* If you plan to warm these bowls up before serving, you may want to store the pico de gallo separate until after warming the rest of the ingredients up.

I made these for lunch for this week. I LOVE the turkey taco bowls! I made it as directed, minus the onions (I do not like onions) and my own taco seasoning recipe, It was fantastic. I was a little leary of eating it cold but it was very tasty. I have also made the Thai Turkey lettuce wraps a couple of times and love those as well. I invested in the 2 cup snap ware containers and they are a game changer for my lunches! Thank you so much.

I started following your blog about a year ago, and this is still one of my favorite recipes! It is my “go-to” recipe when I don’t feel like I have time to meal prep. It’s so easy... I do the rice in my steamer and the turkey in my instant pot and it is done in no time. I like to add some black beans and salsa too. Thank you for showing me that meal prep can be done easily!

I just made this yesterday to take for lunch the rest of the week. I just ate my first one and it was DELICIOUS!
I currently have the same aversion to brown rice that you had, so I used quinoa instead – a little less carbs, a little more protein, but altogether delicious 😊 (maybe I'll try your recipe for brown rice in the oven next time!)

This recipe was my first foray into meal-prep, which I have wanted to try doing for a while but have felt too overwhelmed to get started. The recipe was fantastic—quick and easy to prepare, and a great balance of nutrients, flavours and textures that kept me on my feet and didn't leave me craving snacks in the afternoon. The mental relief from not having to devise new lunches for me and my husband each day was huge, and the time I saved gave me energy and enthusiasm to try a couple of dinner meal-preps too! Thank you SO much for your wonderful site, Denise.

Hi Sarah! I'm sorry that you experienced food poisoning, and I can see how this would make you very cautious about rice! I can assure you that if handled properly, rice is 100% safe to eat...I've read up to 5 days after cooking, but personally I don't do longer than 4 days. The key is to get it in the fridge as quickly as possible, as the harmful bacteria replicate at room temperature. I have been doing this for years and have never had any issues...we even freeze rice

Hi Dawn! I'm obsessed with my glass Snapware storage containers (these ones here: <http://amzn.to/2ksdEzy>). I love glass because you don't have to worry about any chemicals seeping into your food when you re-heat, they don't stain or hold flavors of other food you've stored in them, they heat more evenly, and I swear, the food just tastes better in them. They are more of an investment than plastic, but I've found them to be more durable than our plastic ones...we've only ever broken one container in a whole year, and

The best way to freeze rice is right after you make it. Place a cup of hot rice in a freezer bag and seal it and place it in the freezer immediately. The condensation will freeze with the rice. When you are ready for it, place it in the microwave for 2 minutes. It will steam in the bag making the rice soft and moist.

2.5 cups hot water

1Tbsp butter

pinch of salt

1.5 cups uncooked brown rice

Preheat oven to 375. Pour water into oven safe dish. Add butter and salt and stir until dissolved. Add rice and stir. Cover and cook for 1 hour. Remove, uncover, fluff, and let cool. I add some salt free flavouring with the butter step (chicken or beef).

Do you put them in the fridge? Do they last?

Hi Samela! Yes, you have to store them in the fridge, and they last for up to 4 days.

I could have tacos for DAYS...and anything in bowl form is always a plus for me. I swear, all I've been eating is some variation of Mexican bowls for lunch everyday. These look so delicious Denise!
